Seventh Goddess is now offering unlicensed, uncertified, unsanctioned BRUTALLY EFFECTIVE Dating & Relationship Coaching

One of the greatest gifts you could give yourself or your partner this Valentine's Day is to get some freedom in an area you've been struggling with or where you are totally stuck. Your first hour-long session is free for a limited time.

Our goal is to provide a service that really makes a difference in the lives of people in our community. Here's how we see it: if people were in relationships that work, and we mean really work for both people, every corner of our lives would be impacted in a dramatic and positive way. The possibility of having joyful, fulfilled lives would arise in ways that are hard to imagine now, given how much energy we spend "working on" our relationships or struggling in the dating scene.

In the world of dating, we seem to be overwhelmed with choices (thousands of single people are spending hours each week on online dating sites in Albuquerque alone), yet at the same time we seem unable to find someone who really clicks with us, has integrity, and has real life-partner potential.

In the world of relationships, we adhere to traditional wisdom that says relationships are hard work, that each partner must give their fifty percent, and that communication is the key, but we don't really have a clue what kind of hard work we should be doing (what we're doing now certainly isn't working, but it sure seems hard), why our partner isn't giving the fifty percent we think they should give, and what the heck does "communication" mean, anyway?

How can Seventh Goddess's coaching help? Through conversation, our goal is to give you a new perspective that will empower and enliven you, regardless of your relationship status. The cornerstone of this new perspective is understanding human mechanics, particularly in the area of gender, and taking personal responsibility in such a way that you can tap into your own power to have a deeply fulfilling relationship, regardless of your circumstances or relationship history.

This is not counseling or psychotherapy. In fact, no one at Seventh Goddess is a licensed mental health professional, and if that's what you need we recommend you NOT use our services. This service is for people who are well, and looking for new tools to live their lives more powerfully and with greater joy and ease.

Coaching is provided by Deborah Reese, Owner of Seventh Goddess. For a limited time, we are offering the first hour-long session at no charge. Call (505) 243-8025 or email info@seventhgoddess.com to schedule your session.

Also try our Outfit Consultations: Let us create a lingerie outfit for you that will knock his socks off. Not sure what will flatter your figure? About Deborah Reese: Deborah retired her career as a software company executive and founded Seventh Goddess in 2005 determined to make a difference for women and their partners in the area of sexual self-expression and self-confidence. The Nob Hill lingerie boutique has become a staple of Albuquerque culture, and Seventh Goddess is known as a valuable resource for the community.

After 19 years of intense study, inquiry, personal experimentation, and volunteer coaching in the areas of ontology, human mechanics, gender differences, and relationships, Ms. Reese has decided to "go pro" and offer formal coaching services to the Albuquerque community.

On a personal note: Deborah has lived in Albuquerque 18 years, turns 40 this year and has two beautiful daughters. She continues to enjoy a great relationship with her former husband of ten years, has spent five years in the Albuquerque dating scene, and is now in a long-term, committed, joyful and deeply fulfilling relationship. Her innovative approach to everything from music to human resources to retail shop management has earned her a lot of media attention, including articles in the Albuquerque Journal, Albuquerque the Magazine, Albuquerque Arts, Working Woman Magazine, and the New York Times.
